2. Country background

Moldova is a small lower middle-income country highly dependent on agriculture, which is the main source of livelihood in rural areas where live approximately 75% of the population.

Agriculture is an important employment sector in rural areas, where other jobs are not sufficiently developed. Currently around one third of the population works abroad and the labour migration has left the country with the aging population.

Despite the fact that in the past decade Moldova has made a considerable progress in socio-economic and welfare development, it is still one of the poorest countries in Europe and there still remain some segments of the population who still face significant disadvantages, including smallholders, women and youth.

A proactive approach, driven by the state institutions, donor community and agricultural producers and associations is needed to raise the competitiveness and outputs of the Moldovan agriculture sector in order to increase the level of incomes and quality of life in rural areas, especially among youth, women and smallholders, and therefore to prevent outmigration.
